CHAUNCEY FORWARD BLACK.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

Chauncey F. Black was born "among the sons of frosty thunder," in Somerset county, Pa., November, 1839. His early education was obtained at Monongalia academy, Morgantown, W. Va.; at Hiram college, in Ohio, and he finished his studies at Jefferson college, Canonsburg. When he was a pupil at Hiram the late President Garfield was a tutor there, and the acquaintance thus formed ripened into a personal friendship, which was only interrupted by the president's tragic death. Their political differences were the widest, as illustrated by the scholarly and irresistible paper, in which Mr. Black took issue with Mr. Garfield's exultant boast that the influence of Jefferson is on the wane in our political system.

Young Black was admitted to the bar of Somerset, but never practiced much, showing early inclination toward journalism and other forms of literary work. From the time of beginning his law studies he wrote for various journals on a wide range of topics, doing a vast amount of effective political work, for which he had trained himself by profound study of the fathers of the Republic. Jefferson found in him an appreciative but discriminating admirer, and the Hamiltonian theories encountered his early criticism and dissent. Study of the constitution and of the discussions over its adoption and construction only confirmed him in Democracy, and with the growth of ideas he recognized that they who had founded our institutions had builded wiser than they knew, formulating a system which could be practicably and profitably applied to every question that arose.

HIS LABORS IN JOURNALISM.

Since 1873 Mr. Black has been more closely and continuously identified with the journalism of the country—withdrawing temporarily from it since his candidacy and nomination for lieutenant governor. In this period he has been uninterruptedly an editorial contributor to the New York Sun and other prominent journals of the country, his facile pen being devoted to no special range of subjects, and often wandering into the more graceful lines of literature, in which his creations are as delicate and his fancies as tender as his fulminations are vigorous and effective when hurled at political evils. The geniality and native humor of his temperament, which make him a social favorite wherever he is known, unmistakably manifest themselves in his literary work, but the sturdy Anglo Saxon and virile thought of his editorial expression make it recognizable through almost any disguise.

Against the evils of monopoly and the pretensions of corporations to be above the law of the land, to the service of the common people and a just appreciation of the rights and dignity of labor, to the extirpation of bossism and the overthrow of the spoils system, against corruption in administration, whether practised by partisan friend or foe, and for frugality in public expenditures, his pen has always been enlisted. There are few that have done more effective service in the cause of the people.

AT HOME.

In 1863 Mr. Black was married to the daughter of the late Hon. John L. Dawson, whose home was at Friendship Hill, Fayette county—the former residence of Albert Gallatin, and the present residence of Mr. Dawson's widow, which is still in the ownership of Mrs. Black's family. Mr. Dawson represent the (then) XXI district in Congress with great distinction. He was in reality the father of the Homestead law now in force. Of the four children at "Willow Bridges," the three boys illustrate their distinguished lineage by the names Jeremiah Sullivan, John L. Dawson and Chauncey Forward, and Mr. Black's eldest child and only daughter is growing into stately womanhood. Possessed in eminent degree of those fireside virtues which are the best qualities of public men, Mr. Black has social accomplishments which make him extremely popular with his acquaintances. Upon his nomination he received the hearty congratulations of his neighbors and assurances of their support regardless of party, because of the warmth of feeling which his personal characteristics have awakened for him. No local interest fails to engage his sympathy and his farmer friends and neighbors are accustomed to count him among those who regard their agricultural concerns with community of interest. He was one of the charter members of Springettsbury Grange, No. 79, organized in Spring Garden township, York county, Pa., January 4, 1874, by R. H. Thomas, State Secretary. He attends the Episcopal church.

IN POLITICS.

Mr. Black, though a student of politics, has never failed to take a laboring oar in the practical work of campaigns. Besides the engagement of his pen for effective work in many quarters, he has been heard upon the stump year after year, and a number of the later platforms of the Democratic State Convention are accredited to his authorship. In 1879 he represented York county in the State convention, and in 1880 he was one of the delegates from that Congressional district to the Cincinnati convention, voting on the first ballot for Judge Field and on the second for General Hancock. Prior to the late State convention, from the time his nomination for Lieutenant Governor was first broached, the suggestion was received with popular favor, and he was chosen by a large majority on the first ballot. The selection was ratified most heartily not only by the Democratic press of Pennsylvania but by many journals of large influence outside the State.

HIS POLITICAL PRINCIPLES.

From his youth up Mr. Black has been a supporter of those Democratic principles which he comes to by inheritance and holds by intelligent conviction. With ready pen and eloquent tongue he has steadily maintained them for over twenty years. In all his utterances and writings they never found abler nor more fitting expression than in his recent successful effort to revive the Jeffersonian societies and extend the study of Jeffersonian principles. To this patriotic task he has applied himself not because of any retrospective tendency of his mind, nor by reason of any failure to profoundly appreciate the spirit of true progressiveness and to adapt himself and his political principles to the wonderful development of our national life. He holds that in the Jeffersonian philosophy are the germs of all political progress.

In the system originated and declared by those illustrious men who settled our free institutions and founded the Democratic party to preserve them, he discovers certain fundamental principles by which all later day issues may be fairly tested, and departure from which can only be safely ventured upon when it has been determined to subvert the principles of the fathers.

THE JEFFERSONIAN SOCIETIES.

It will be remembered that in securing their rights from British tyranny and afterward in preserving them from insidious enemies at home, Jefferson and his compatriots of the revolution always trusted in the power of popular association, in committees of vigilance and liberty clubs. The evils which they were organized to uproot and the dangers which they averted are thus graphically pointed out in an address of the Jeffersonian Society of York, Pa., of which Mr. Black is President:

"How did the Republicans of that day face and avert the first grand conspiracy to destroy the republic? By the establishment, wherever possible, of what were called 'Democratic Societies,' in which the people met, discussed the designs of their enemies, contrived the means of defeating them, encouraged each other in the good fight for liberty, and directed and concentrated public opinion so as to make it most effectual. These societies were mighty engines in the politics of that gloomy period. Their influence was wide spread and irresistible. They spoke the voice of the people and made it respected. The result was the complete overthrow of the Federal party; the sullen abandonment of the dark schemes of the 'monocrats;' the election of Jefferson and the putting of the 'ship of state on her Republican track again.' They 'saved the constitution,'—to use the expression of Jefferson—at the last gasp.'"

APPLICATION TO MODERN POLITICS.

And, applying the same remedy to existing conditions, this address, written by Mr. Black proceeds:

"Will not the same means be equally effective now? There can be no doubt of it. Imagine Jefferson Democratic Associations established at convenient points in every district, wherein intelligent Democrats might meet to discuss the affairs of the country, to express to each other the dangerous character of the measures with which we are threatened, and to notify by resolution, by address, or by deputies, to their fellow Democrats and to the public, their opinions and their will! What power of perverted government, of patronage, of monopoly, of corruption, however combined or maneuvered by greed and ambition, could withstand the thunders of the popular clubs!"

Again: "It is beyond measure important that the Democratic party, being the party of the people, should be managed for the people, and not by professional politicians and bosses, as the so-called Republican party is managed. These associations would afford a ready, convenient, and regular method of expressing the people's wishes with regard to party concerns, local, state and national; but without displacing any part of the usual and necessary machinery.

Upon one thing at least we are all agreed, and that is that the teachings of Thomas Jefferson are the only true and infallible touch-stone of faith. Let us then, by associating together, under his name, and pledging anew our allegiance to the sacred principles which he formulated, erect a common standard of doctrine and thus insure the complete harmony and early success of the democratic party.

I do not recommend that these associations be incorporated with the present regular organization of the party, but that each association shall be independent of every other, and that they be connected mainly by friendly correspondence. Established only by the voluntary action of the Democratic voters, they need not be expensive or burdensome in any way. Their meetings would be regulated by the desires of the members, or the exigencies of public affairs, but the organization once established would be there and available for any emergency, like the vigilance committees of the revolution, and the Democratic societies, which contributed so much to save the Constitution in 1800, dissolved the Federalist conspiracy of that day, and gave us the glorious Democratic Republican administrations of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson."

THE JEFFERSON AND HAMILTON SYSTEMS.

How admirably these Jeffersonian principles may be applied to modern politics is illustrated by the following extract from Mr. Black's famous paper entitled: "A Contrast—Jefferson and Hamilton—Democracy and Federalism—1800–1881—The Same Parties and the Same Principles—A plain Question! Shall the People Rule, or shall they be ruled?" published in New York on July 4, 1881. In that he says:

"Mr. Jefferson's sovereign cure for all the ills of the State was the introduction of the most rigid economy; a frugal government is seldom corrupt and never oppressive. He cut down the great military and naval establishments bequeathed by the Federalists as rapidly as the law permitted, and finally, with the aid of Congress, reduced the army to about three thousand men, which were all that an honest government had any use for. He reduced the diplomatic force to the three Ministers at London, Paris and Madrid. He dismissed unnecessary officials as fast as investigation disclosed their existence. He directed Gallatin to simplify the Treasury statements and accounts, so as to render them intelligible to the plainest citizen, and invited every aid in the work of reform. The whole system of internal taxation, including three-fourths of the whole civil list, was abolished at a blow, and the deficiency supplied by Jefferson's invariable expedient, economy. When he had exhausted his discretion he appealed to Congress for authority to make further reductions, and the curious spectacle was presented of an Executive petitioning the Legislature for permission to surrender power and to give up patronage. The result was the rapid decrease of the public debt, which the Federalists had regarded as a 'national blessing,' and the rise of a new question, new, indeed, in every part of the earth, 'What should be done with the surplus?' Of this government, in truth, the people knew nothing but the blessings; its burdens were imperceptible. This was 'the system of Jefferson.' It was faithfully continued under his lineal descendants, Madison and Monroe, and has never, for an instant of time, ceased to command the deliberate approval of the American people. If it has been displaced by corrupt administrations, they have never yet dared to go to the country upon their Federalist principles. They have uniformly disguised their measures, denied their purposes, and ridden into power upon false pretenses."

BOSSISM AND THE SPOILS SYSTEM.

At a time when relief from the boss system and the enforcement of administrative reform are the ruling political issues, what more fitly meets popular wants than these principles from the Jeffersonian system, as expounded by Mr. Black:

"Supreme confidence in the virtue and intelligence of the people, and implicit obedience to their will when legally expressed.

"An honest administration of the government, which implies not merely a just application of the public moneys to the public service, but a faithful observance of the limitations of the Constitution. Of applicants for office three questions only need be asked: 'Is he honest?' 'Is he capable?' 'Is he faithful to the Constitution?'

"A number of officials sufficient for the transaction of the public business: no supernumeraries to eat out the substance of the people."

LIBERAL AND AGGRESSIVE DEMOCRACY.

His close study of this Jeffersonian system necessarily makes Mr. Black an uncompromising opponent of excessive legislation, extravagance, corruption, needless taxation and expenditure, ring government, bossism and the spoils system. All of his journalistic work has been directed against these evils which independent and thoughtful men of all parties now denounce and condemn.

His broad and liberal views of the present canvass are the natural outcome of his political training. These views were expressed in the following speech, delivered at a serenade tendered to him by his neighbors, irrespective of party, soon after his nomination for lieutenant governor by the Democratic State convention:

"The battle now to be fought is not one for mere partisan victory; its object is the reform of the State government in all its departments and clean hands only must be put to work. The nomination of the gallant Pattison—the stainless young leader, who stands at the head of the reform column in Philadelphia, means precisely that and nothing else. Like the Black Knight of old, come to restore the rightful sovereign to his own, this bold tribune of the people will be found thundering at the gate of the ring citadel, battle-axe in hand, and when he makes his lodgement within, the 'black flag of the bosses' will be displaced by the purest political banner that ever floated on any breeze. Our Republican friends shall have no reason to complain of us. If we do not give them what we promise, an absolutely pure and honest government—they have the power to turn us out, and all decent citizens will help them to do it. But there is little danger of that. They tried Pattison once, and, instead of finding reasons to part with him, they discovered many powerful reasons for adding thousands of Republican votes to his previous majority.

"And the rest of the ticket, barring the present speaker, is fully up to the Pattison standard. The beginning of reform in this State was the adoption of the new constitution which, despite the most tremendous exertions of the ring, received something like 150,000 majority. In the convention which framed that beneficent instrument, Clarke and Elliot were tall figures and devoted laborers. Every line of it is dear to them; they are actuated by its spirit; and their influence will of necessity be exerted to complete the reforms which they so auspiciously began.

"We can have no quarrel with good citizens, who have hitherto chosen to carry a party name different from ours. To such we shall address our appeals in the next four months with the most abundant confidence that they will be received in the spirit in which they are made. We admit that when united they are the majority; but the present struggle for the deliverance of the commonwealth from evils universally acknowledged and universally deplored, is an occasion which, like pestilence and war, drives all true men together for the public safety. Our Republican neighbors, who are tax payers and not tax eaters, are as earnest in their desire for pure and economical government as we are, and thousands of them will avail themselves of this opportunity for a radical change, which, under the peculiar circumstances, we alone of the three great parties, in the field, are able to offer them."

THE ISSUES OF THE DAY.

Thus it will be seen that upon the leading issues of this State campaign Mr. Black takes a position which entitles him to the support of honest men of all parties. Whoever is against bossism and the spoils system, and whoever is for administrative reform and the encouragement of the new constitution in all its provisions, can conscientiously support him for lieutenant-governor for this commonwealth.

Unpublished Page from the Life of George Washington.

It is the merry summer time. To him the mother of the father of his country:

"George dear, where have you been since school was dismissed?"

"Hain't been nowhere, ma."

"Did you come straight home from school, George?"

"Yes, ma'am!"

"But school is dismissed at 3 o'clock, and it is now half past 6. How does that come?"

"Got kep' in."

"What for?"

"Missed in joggrafy less'n."

"But your teacher was here only an hour ago, and said you hadn't been to school all day."

"Got kep' in yestiddy, then."

"George, why were you not at school to-day?"

"Forgot. Thought all the time it was Saturday."

"Don't stand on one side of your foot in that manner. Come here to me. George, you have been swimming."

"No'me."

"Yes, you have, George. Havn't you?"

"No ap."

"Tell your mother, George?"

"Nuck."

"Then what makes your hair so wet, my son?"

"Sweat. I run so fast comin' from school."

"But your shirt is wrong side out."

"Put it on that way when I got up this morning for luck. Always win when you play for keeps if your shirt's on wrong side out."

"And you havn't the right sleeve of your shirt on your arm at all, George, and there is a hard knot tied in it. How did that come there?"

"Bill Fairfax tied it in when I wasn't lookin'."

"But what were you doing with your shirt off?"

"Didn't have it off. He jes' took'n tied that knot in there when it was on me."

"George!!"

"That's honest truth, he did."

About that time the noble Bushrod came along with a skate strap, and we draw a veil over the dreadful scene, merely remarking that boys do not seem to change so much as men.—Burlington Hawkeye.

RATS AND MICE.—A writer in the Scientific American says: "We cleaned our premises of the detestable vermin, rats, by making whitewash yellow with copperas, and covering the stones and rafters with it. In every crevice in which a rat may go we put the crystals of copperas, and scatter in the corner of the floor. The result was a perfect stampede of rats and mice. Since that time not a footfall of either rats or mice has been heard around the house. Every spring a coat of yellow-wash is given the cellar as a purifier, as a rat exterminator, and no typhoid, dysentery, or fever attacks the family. Many persons deliberately attract all the rats in the neighborhood by leaving the fruits and vegetables uncovered in the cellar, and sometimes even the soap is left open for their regalement. Cover up everything eatable in the cellar or pantry, and you will soon starve them out. These precautions, joined to the service of a good cat, will prove as good a rat exterminator as the chemist can provide. We never allow rats to be poisoned in our dwelling. They are apt to die between the walls, and produce much annoyance."

THE SUNFLOWER.—This flower has recently been brought into bad repute as the favorite of the soft-headed aesthete. But it is a flower of valuable properties which seem not to be properly appreciated in this country. The blossoms feed the bees, the seeds are excellent for poultry and contain a most excellent oil that burns clear and long, and makes good toilet soap. The sunflower will grow anywhere and it is an excellent plant to absorb bad air and prevent malarial diseases. It should therefore be planted about pig pens, barn yards and hen roosts and serve a double purpose. The seeds should be planted about 12 inches apart and when 10 or 12 inches high earth them up like corn hills, and they will ask no further attention at your hands. Each plant will produce at the lowest estimate 1,000 seeds. The centre flower often produces that amount, and the lateral flowers several hundred. Six pounds of seeds will plant an acre, and it can be planted after the crop of early potatoes has been harvested.

A Rabbinical Legend.

1. And it came to pass when Solomon, the son of David, had finished the Temple at Jerusalem, that he prepared a feast for his chief Craftsman and artificers, and spread the tables with the fatness of the land, and with the wine and corn and oil thereof.

2. And the seat of the King was apart on a raised dais facing the head of the table, and the two famous pillars of bronze with their beautiful capitals of lillies, pomegranates and delicate network stood, one on his right hand and the other on his left, and the lintel thereof was as a canopy over the head of the King.

3. And Solomon had also prepared a seat of honor, and set it on his right hand, ready for that Craftsman who might be pronounced most worthy among all who wrought in building the house of the Lord.

4. And when all was ready he called unto his chief architects and master overseers, and the head artificers, who were cunning workers in gold and silver, in bronze and ivory, and in wood and stone, yea, all who had labored in building the Temple of the Most High, and he said unto them:

5. "Come now with me and partake of the feast which I have prepared. Stretch forth your hands. Eat, drink and be merry. The skilled artificer is worthy of honor. Is not the laborer worthy of his hire? Muzzle not the ox that treadeth out the corn upon the threshing floor.

6. And when Solomon and his guests had arrived at the place of the feast they beheld a man clad in the garb and covered with the soil of labor seated in the chair of honor not yet awarded. And the King waxed wroth and said:

"What manner of man art thou? Why comest thou thus unseemly and unbidden to our feast, where none are invited save the chief workers on the Temple?"

And the man answered and said:

"Please you, I came not unbidden. Was it not proclaimed that this day the chief workmen of the Temple dine with the King. Therefore am I come.

And when the man had thus spoken, the guests talked with each other, and he who carved the cherubim spake aloud and said:

"This fellow is no sculptor. I know him not."

And he who inlaid the roof with pure gold said:

"Neither is he of those who work in refined metals."

And he who wrought in raising the walls said:

"He belongs not with those who are cutters of stone."

And one who labored in shaping the timbers for the roof said:

"We who are cunning in cedar wood, and know the mystery of joining strange timbers together, know him not. He is not of us."

Then said King Solomon:

"How sayst thou now? Wherefore should I not have thee plucked by the beard, scourged with a scourger and stoned with stones even unto death?"

But the man was nowise daunted, and he rose from his seat, and came to where the wine was set, and took a cup of the wine and raised it high and spake aloud, saying: "O King! live forever!" Then he drank long until the cup was emptied."

He now returned to the seat and spake to the guests who had rebuked him, and said unto the chief of the carvers of stone:

"Who made the instruments with which you carve?"

And he answered: The Blacksmith."

And to the chief of the workers of wood he said:

"Who made the tools with which you felled the cedars of Lebanon and shaped them into pillars and roof for the Temple?"

And he also answered: "The Blacksmith."

Then he spake unto the artificer in gold and ivory and precious stones, saying:

"Who fashioned the instruments with which you wrought beautiful ornaments for my lord the King?"

And he, too, made answer the same, "The Blacksmith."

Then said the man to Solomon:

"Behold, O King! I am he whom, when men deride, they call Blacksmith, but when they would honor me, they call me the Son of the Forge. These Craftsmen say truly that I am not of them. I am their superior. Without my labor first, their labor could not be. The great Tubal Cain, whom all men honor, taught those who in turn taught me my handicraft, and the mighty Vulcan, who wrought in fire and smoke and sweat as I do. Was it deemed fitting he should have even the Queen of Beauty to wife?"

"Son of the Forge," said Solomon, I, too, honor thee, thou worthy successor of the great master, Tubal Cain. Take thou this seat at my right hand, prepared for the most worthy. It is thy due."

Thus it came to pass at the feast of Solomon, the wise King of Israel, and from that time forth the Smiths were held in high esteem, and greatly increased and multiplied in all lands.

THE COLUMBIAN.

G. E. ELWELL, J. K. DITTENBENDER, } Editors.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th, 1882.

Notice to Democrats.

Last day for being assessed and registered—Thursday, September 7th.

Last day for paying taxes—Saturday, October 7th.

Last day for being naturalized—Saturday, October 7th.

The only two newspapers published by colored men in this state fly the independent republican flag.

The poor directors of the State will meet in convention at Somerset on the 11th of September.

Henry M. Seeley, Esq. has been appointed by Gov. Hoyt as the President Judge of the Judicial district composed of Wayne and Pike counties.

As we go to press we learn that on the fourteenth ballot of the Congressional Conferees at Mauch Chunk, the vote stood: Brodhead, 6; Buckalew, 4; Gorman, 3; Miles, 6; Lewis, 2.

The result of the Garland-Addison duel trial in Virginia seems to be on a par with the verdict in the celebrated Malley case in New Haven. There was somebody murdered, but the court was unable to decide that the man who did the killing was guilty of murder. The law must be charged with another failure.

D. W. Connolly has been nominated for Congress by the democrats of Lackawanna county, and Luzerne county will probably ratify this action. With only one candidate in the field the democracy of that district ought to elect him, and give Scranton a back seat.

The Star Route trial is still in progress at Washington. The evidence was closed, and counsel have been addressing the jury for about two weeks. While there is no question as to whether the defendants ought to be convicted, there is some anxiety lest the jury may acquit.

The Lewisburg Chronicle which has been encouraging the independent ticket, has hoisted Beaver's name, the Bosses having got the upper hand of the editor The closing reason given for the change is that the paper may lose some subscribers by not supporting the regular republican ticket. That paper's heart appears to be reached through its pocket book.

The chairman of the National Labor party of this State has sent a communication to the chairmen of the Democratic, Republican, and Independent committees, respectively, asking them to name one or more speakers to meet men whom he will name, in a series of joint political discussions throughout the state. As Beaver has not yet accepted Stewart's challenge, it is doubtful whether he will comply.

The Philadelphia Almshouse officials have at last come to grief. They have been carrying on a system of plundering for some years, and their peculations have just been discovered. Major Phipps has absconded after being arrested, and over $7,000 worth of goods have been found in his possession that were bought with the public money. He is still in hiding but the officers are after him. There will be some astonishing developments before the storm blows over.

The congressional conference is now in session at Mauch Chunk, Mr. Buckalew and his coafrees, Messrs. Lowenberg, Cyrus McHenry, and Yocum being in attendance. Mr. Buckalew has every reason to expect the nomination. He has the conferees of Columbia and Lackawanna, and one at least from Luzerne, and the Montour and Monroe delegation are favorable after their candidates are off. We expect to hear of Mr. Buckalew's nomination without much of a contest.

It is likely that Jay Hubbel's blackmailing levy on the office holders will cost more than it will come to. The Philad'a Press thinks that "at such a juncture, to insult the moral sense of the country and estrange its own independent vote by chasing down unpaid assessments in Department corridors at Washington is one of those political blunders which approach the weakest of all crimes—suicide." It is of opinion that "a genuine service will be done the hopeful Republican leaders on the congressional committee if their collectors are kicked out of the departments, and the scandal ceases out of the land. Nor can the administration do more for itself than by doing right in this matter. One class, it is true, will always be in favor of assessments—the thieves and strikers. It is not, of course, true that every man in favor of assessments is a thief; but every thief is in favor of assessments. Dorsey, we know, believes in them, and probably every man indicted with him does, too."

MAHONE'S FIGHT IN VIRGINIA.

The straightout Republican State Committee met at Richmond last week, Thursday, and put John W. Woltz, of Fredericksburg, in the field for Congress in the First District against Mahone's candidate. The committee also designated a number of prominent colored and white speakers to canvass the State. The Anti-Mahone Republicans, under the direction of the Democrats, are making preparations for a vigorous opposition to Mahone's continued supremacy in that State. In all of these movements the hand of ex Secretary Blaine is plainly visible. He is in daily communication with the straightout leaders, and it is believed is furnishing some means with which to conduct the fight against Mahone.

Several prominent colored politicians, who have been the political friends of the Senator from the very inception of his movement, have, within the past few days deserted him, and are now making war upon him. Some of his conservative white leaders, too, are restive under his arbitrary and tyrannical mode of conducting the canvass. Nearly all the Mahoneite candidates for Congress have been selected with an eye to their tractability by "Boss" Mahone. The claims of many of the best men in the various districts were disregarded for those Mahone could more easily influence. The Senator has secured an immense campaign fund, and will lavish it upon doubtful districts.

The Assistant Stalwart Candidate.

Thomas A. Armstrong, the gubernatorial candidate of the commercial greenback concern, is on his travels in democratic districts doing what he can to help Boss Cameron by endeavoring to draw votes from Pattison. He made a speech at Reading on Wednesday night and will of course perambulate the mining regions where he hopes to advance the interest of Cameron by dividing the anti-machine vote. Let Mr. Armstrong's pilgrimage be traced on the map of the state and it will be seen that he is giving the greater part of his time to points at which the democratic vote is heaviest. He is attempting to repeat the Mason game of 1878 which was played throughout under the direction of M. S. Quay. Armstrong is a stalwart republican, never voted a democratic ticket in his life, hates the very name of democrat and his pretended championship of the cause of labor is simply intended to divert votes from Pattison in order to strengthen the stalwart candidate, Beaver. His canvass is in the hands of politicians who have been the tools of Cameron in the past and who were engaged in the plot by which the labor vote was betrayed to the boss in 1878 through the candidacy of Mason. One of these delectable politicians, Lee Crandall, of Washington City, traveled over this state last fall on the pretense of reorganizing the greenback faction but in fact to deliver as many greenback votes as possible to General Baily, the stalwart candidate for state treasurer. Frank Heath, the chairman of the Armstrong state committee, prints a newspaper at Corry, which sails under greenback colors but pirate-like trains its guns upon the opponent of the boss. C. N. Brumm, of Schuylkill, who was sent to congress through the manipulation of the republican vote by deputy boss Losch, Secretary Quay's chief clerk, is another of Mr. Armstrong's trusted lieutenants. The earmarks of Cameron are too plainly visible in the organization of the greenback state committee for Armstrong to succeed in deluding any body with his pretense of equal hostility to both the democratic and republican parties. He is simply and solely an assistant stalwart candidate, put out as a decoy to aid the bosses in bagging his game. All his demagogy about building up a class party, all his fine speeches about the rights of the people whose votes he seeks to control for the indirect benefit of the stalwart machine will fail to deceive intelligent men who will investigate his political antecedents and surroundings.—Patriot.

Reading's Big Mortgage.

The Philadelphia Record of the 1st inst., says that the largest mortgage ever recorded in this state, and perhaps in the United States, has been entered in the office of the recorder of deeds in that city. The exceptional document is the blanket mortgage of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company devised by President Gowen for the relief of the company, and is for $160,000,000. The loan is in the form of a 5 per cent. consol, and is a joint mortgage by the railroad and coal and iron companies, and is executed to the Penn sylvania company for insurance on lives and granting annuities. It covers 260 pages of legal cap, and is a most formidable looking instrument.

An officer of the railroad company says that but ten copies of the document had been printed, and they were forwarded from London, but that others would probably arrive by the next incoming steamer. There was information that Mr. Gowen had a favorable offer for $40,000,000 of the loan, and that he had several large individual subscriptions. The mortgage was not recorded until nearly 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The contents are familiar to the general public, as a pretty elaborate prospectus of the loan was published prior to the election of the Bond management of the road. It was discussed at length in the courts, and an injunction was issued by the United States court against the loan, as it contained certain legal informalities. The petitioners, among them the Messrs. McCalmont, stated that the loans were not desired by the majority of the bond and stockholders, and for this reason mainly the Court granted the injunction.

At the election for president of the company, in January last, Mr. Gowen's triumphant victory was completed by a majority vote of the stockholders sustaining his financial schemes, among which was the present loan. Following this came the withdrawal of all opposition and the removal of the injunction by the court. Mr. Gowen at once proceeded to negotiate his deferred bond loan for $34,000,000, the required instalments upon which up to date it is declared by officers of the company have been paid. His absence in Europe now is upon the blanket mortgage, or five per cent. consol mortgage, which was the one recorded yesterday. This mortgage covers all the property of the company covered by the income mortgage, which includes all the railroads and household estates of the company at the time the mortgage was executed, and does not include the leases of the Bound Brook and North Pennsylvania railroads, which have been included, however, in the securities of the present mortgage. All the real estate of the company is also included.

All the property of the coal and iron company is also included, which, however, is subject to two prior mortgages, one for $25,000,000 and another for $10,000,000. The total of mortgages on the railroad is $70,000,000, and the $35,000,000 on the coal and iron company makes the total upon the two companies $105,000,000, and it was supposed that this covered everything the companies owned or ever expected to own. By making the blanket loan for such a large amount as $160,000,000. Mr. Gowen proposes to retire the $60,000,000 general mortgage bonds, $160,000,000 income bonds, $12,000,000 coal and iron company's divisional mortgages, and about $60,000,000 general mortgage bonds, $10,000,000 income bonds, $12,000,000 coal and iron company's divisional mortgages, and about $60,000,000 of the bonds and stocks of leased lines. The balance will be appropriated toward the new railroad extensions, necessary improvements and the redemption of collateral pledged or the floating debt and unprovided for by the deferred bonds. The cost of recording the mortgage in this city will be $150 and the total cost recording it in all the counties through which the lines of the company run will be about $25,000.

Not an Office Seeker.

Mr. Pattison has pursued a dignified, manly course since his nomination, giving the same personal attention to the duties of his office that he had before his nomination for governor. He never sought the office for which he is now a candidate, and his actions since his nomination show him to be a believer in the doctrine that the people should be allowed to make their own choice from among the candidates in the field. The honor conferred on him by the Harrisburg convention did not turn his head or make him turn his back on the trust the people of Philadelphia confided to his care, and the good sense he has shown since he became the Democratic standard bearer has "won him golden opinions from all sorts of people." If he is elected governor, of which there appears now to be no doubt, it can be said with entire truth of him that the office sought the man and not the man the office.—Easton Argus.

New York State Campaign.

If the Democrats act wisely this fall, their chances for carrying the State are about as good as when they elected Mr. Tilden Governor in 1874.

The Republican party in the State is rent by bitter feuds. Its two factions are bent upon destroying each other. The party is heavily weighted with the profligate record of Congress. The Republicans controlled each House, and are responsible for their misdeeds. The party is seriously damaged by the proceedings in the Legislature last winter and spring. The Cornell deal with Tammany made this the most unpopular Legislature for the past forty years.

Except in one or two places, the Democrats of the State are thoroughly united. With harmony in their counsels, and a strong ticket and a full vote, they can win a victory at the polls in November.—N. Y. Sun.

Dr. Bliss' Claim.

Dr. D. W. Bliss has written a letter to the Board of Audit appointed to settle the expenses of the illness of the late President, in which he sets forth in detail his claim to remuneration. He asserts that his receipts from his practice at the time when he was called to attend the late President were about $1,500 a month, that this practice was to a great extent broken up by the engrossing nature of his duties at the Executive Mansion, and that the direct pecuniary loss resulting therefrom and from subsequent ill health caused by long continued nervous strain and over exertion, amount to about $15,000. He thinks he should receive as compensation for his losses and his services to the late President the sum of $25,000.

A Child of the State.

Notwithstanding the heat of last evening a fine audience assembled at the Park Theatre to witness the beautiful five act drama of "A Child of the State" by Manager F. J. Pilling's carefully selected dramatic company. The play abounds in striking situations and in many parts develops tender and beautiful sentiment. The "Gertrande" of Mille. Zelma Vlademir was a strong conscientious effort which the audience was not slow to recognize, and applaud. Her style of acting is very pleasing and of a character calculated to carry the house with her from her first appearance to the fall of the curtain. Miss Emma Stokes as the young Child of the State, was perfectly at home in her part, and did indeed manage to "keep things lively." She is a pretty, vivacious and very clever actress. The "Count Maurice de Lancey" of Mr. J. H. Fitzpatrick proved him to be a finished actor of the old school. The "Gros Reno" of Mr. J. H. Moroso was admirably rendered and drew forth frequent applause and laughter. Other parts were ably sustained by Miss M. E. Fitzpatrick, Miss Kate Burlingame and Messrs. J. E. Wilson and Edwin Browne. Each lady as she enters the theatre is presented with a beautiful souvenir pallette upon which is depicted in colors, one of the most striking scenes of the play.—Newark Register, Sept. 2d.

One of the most complete surprises was given Mrs. Bodine of Catawissa on the 25th of August. It was her seventy-third birthday, and her children, William Bodine of Bloomsburg, Rev. John Bodine, of Millville and J. D. Bodine of Mainville, had purposed gathering the friends together, to make a joyous occasion for the old lady. They sent her away on Wednesday and on Friday morning the friends began to assemble, until noon there were about eighty guests, and the aged mother was brought home to this company, completely surprised. The friends had prepared an excellent dinner, and all enjoyed themselves. After dinner a presentation address was given by Rev. Diener, and replied to by R. E. Wilson.

OF INTEREST TO LANDLORDS.—A case of great interest to those who keep boarders was decided before Judge Hagenman this week. William Boyer boarded with Peter High, but left without paying his board and taking his baggage with him. Mr. High prosecuted him criminally under the act of 1876, which makes it a misdemeanor to abscond from a boarding house or a hotel without paying the board due. The case turned upon the construction of the word "absconding" as used in the act of assembly. The court held that to abscond a man must either leave the jurisdiction of the court or secrete himself so as to avoid the service of process, and as the defendant had not left town nor secreted himself, the judge charged the jury that he could not be convicted under the act, but that they should return to their room and dispose of the costs.—Norristown Register.

A New Source of Delight.

One of the most delightful works issued in many a day is the "TREASURY OF SONG," Prof. D. H. Morrison, editor, Hubbard Brothers, Publishers, Phila. It would be difficult to detail all the merits and beauties of a book so full of creations that touch the heart and revive memories common to all. The old and familiar songs that have been dear to every home and the brightest, sweetest, new songs that are becoming immensely popular, are here found grouped together in a most beautiful book for the parlor table. The work gives more joy than a hundred concerts or operas, for it comes daily into the family, where all can enjoy it, and where such a book has long been wanted.

This collection embodies the widest diversity in the character of its contents, including compositions which are praiseful, patriotic, martial, descriptive, didactic, sentimental, humorous, pathetic and devotional. It is believed that no phase of sentiment, and no set of circumstances, will fail to be appropriately met in the use of this book. Because of this splendid fullness, all the inmates of the home, from grandfather to baby pet, may feel that the music of the home circle is truly a feast of fat things. There is not a song in the entire collection that could be omitted without marring the completeness of the book. Indeed the world's greatest Basso, M. W. Whitney, of Boston, gives it his "cordial endorsement . . . as a most desirable book for the Home Circle." His opinion is concurred in by multitudes of equally eminent musicians.

Dr. J. H. Vincent, Superintendent of the great Chautauqua Assembly School, was so pleased with this book that he secured three copies as prizes at the competitive Normal examination of that institution.

Memorial.

Died in Greenwood on September 2, of typhoid fever, Miss Cora Beishline, aged 18 years, 9 months and 26 days. The deceased at the age of fourteen years made a public consecration of herself to God by uniting to the Reformed church at St. James. Though young in years her character was christian and womanly, she was an obedient and dutiful child, and her life was a ministry of peace and consolation. Since the coming of her family to this place, she has been a constant member of the Pine Grove Sabbath school, and all had learned to love, honor and respect her. And since it has pleased an all wise Providence to remove her from our midst, we bow submissively, saying: "Thy will be done." We all hope to meet her in the "Sweet Bye and Bye."

She leaves a loving father and mother and two brothers, besides many friends, to mourn her loss. Surely our loss is her great gain, therefore our hearts are comforted; may her death be sanctified to the good of the bereaved family circle, church and Sunday school.

"Thou wert not formed for living here,
So linked thy soul was with the sky;
Yet, ah, we held thee all so dear,
We thought thou wert not formed to die."

The funeral services were held in the Mt. Pleasant Church to which place her remains were followed by a large concourse of sympathizing friends. Her pastor, Rev. A. Houtz, preached the sermon from the text of her own selection: "Let your affections be on things above, and not on things on the earth." Col. 3. 2. The sermon was listened to with much interest. The pall bearers were six young ladies of her Sunday school class.

There is at present going the rounds of the press a suggestion that, though simple, seems to have the endorsement of many as having been effective as a cure for various ailments. The remedial agent is drinking hot water by the tumblerful, in the morning after rising. It is claimed that this will relieve dyspepsia troubles, that it tones the stomach and relieves the system of impurities. The local editor of the New York Dispatch says he has tried the hot water cure for sickheadache, for udwards of three months, and that he has not had an attack of the disease since, although before its use he was afflicted with the sickheadache almost weekly. He is now a firm believer in the hot water cure.

There will be a festival with warm supper at the Grange Hall in Centre Township on Saturday afternoon ahd evening September 16th.

LETTER FROM COL. FREEZE.

The miasma which creeps along the river bottoms and low lying valleys is too heavy to rise in the atmosphere to the mountain tops upon which hang the rain clouds. So far as I know it has not yet been determined at what altitude a Hay Fever victim is relieved from his sufferings. This point, which is said to be twenty-five hundred feet high, I presume above tide water, is of a sufficient height to answer the purpose. I have just enough of the genuine symptoms of Hay Fever here to show me what I would be suffering at home. The objection to the place is its inaccessibility—from Bloomsburg, across the country, forty miles, from Muncy twenty-two miles, from Hughesville seventeen miles. Of course, the certainty of ease from suffering, and rest from labor, enables a man to endure some inconveniencies, but I can easily conceive what a crowd of visitors a railroad, reaching the lake, would bring to its delightful shores and walks.

Some of the conveniences of our late civilization are here already. A telephone to Laporte and Dushore, where you reach a telegraph line, brings you into contact with the wicked outside world; but owing to the peculiar way in which Uncle Samuel carries his mails, it takes about three days to get a letter from Bloomsburg. We are therefore sent back to the times when a newspaper a week old was news; the British army might be drowned in the Red Sea for a week before we could hear of it; or Stewart and Beaver might be belaboring each other, with McClure holding the sponge; or the Kilkenny Kat fight of Konkling and Kornell might be ended for many days before the echoes of Eaglesmere could resound with shouts for the victors, or sighs for the vanquished.

However, to people who do not desire any such excitement, the days pass quietly, and the long August and dreamy September are the after-math of childhood and youth, when neither cares nor sorrows nor business vexed the long day, nor disturbed the sound sleep of the increasing night. The days of the week and even of the month seem not to impress themselves upon your attention, they come and go and make no sign, and leave no mark upon the progress or business of the world. There are persons here from Hughesville, Muncy, Williamsport, Milton, Bloomsburg, Catawissa, Philadelphia and New York—they come and go—they walk and boat, and take excursions upon the steamer and battoe, and say good bye, and we see them no more.

For myself I have been busy giving the last touches to the first part of my "History of Columbia County," and which I send you herewith to be put into the hands of the type-setter. In the intervals of that labor I have been amusing myself trying to read Molliere's Dramatic works, but have found it not so amusing as I expected. French comedy is not to my taste. There are a good many amusing scenes, as there ought to be in over thirty plays, but as a whole they are disappointing.

Of the lake I can add nothing to what I said a year ago. The ruins of glass works are still standing, but storm and frost will before long, tumble the ruinous walls, and the beautiful hill which they now crown will give place to some residence, which it is to be hoped will do honor to its magnificent location. As I said, its inaccessibility is its great drawback. But engineering skill may yet enable a train of cars to scale the mountain tops, and if so, I fear the quiet dreamy life we are now leading will be gone forever. Why should the scream of the locomotive fret the rocks of quiet, sunny, sleepy EAGLESMERE.

WALT WHITMAN'S LEAVES OF GRASS.

The edition of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," about which so much has been written on account of the abandonment of its publication by a Boston firm in consequence of Mr. Anthony Comstock's allegations that it contained objectionable passages, has been issued by Rees Welsh & Co., Philadelphia. The book contains so much true poetry, so many passages which stamp their author as a true poet of a high, though certainly not of the highest order that it is a pity that Mr. Whitman's own good sense has not moved him long ago to cut out the "Children of Adam," words and lines, which add nothing at all to the beauty of his work and which certainly are not structural and vital to it. The author of such a poem as "O Captain, My Captain," does himself injustice and puts himself at a disadvantage most unnecessarily and most cruelly by flying in the face of decent public opinion. Walt Whitman's personality is too sweet and sound and clear to be put by a mere piece of injudiciousness at so great a disadvantage as that under which a few expressions in his poems—wantonly and wilfully kept there against the advice of his best friends—cause him to labor. He will not expunge them himself, and therefore he must pay the penalty; but after he is dead they will be blotted out of editions, for lovers of the good man will be sure to do for his fame that which he himself has—we are sure, foolishly refused to do for it.

The Fruit Orchard.

SETTING OUT ORCHARDS.—When fruit is scarce there is a tendency to set orchards, and an abundance of fruit has the contrary effect. There is but little danger of setting out too many fruit trees however. Past experience shows that as soon as there is more fruit than can be readily disposed of, there is always some way found to utilize it. Distant markets are found, or fruit preserved in some way.

The President of the Ontario Fruit Growers Association, in his annual address, alluded to the fear which some persons entertain of an over production of fruit for a successful market. In answer to this fear he said that while Britain requires fully 2,000,000 barrels of apples yearly more than can grow there, the largest crop that Canada ever produced, which was the previous year, enabled them to send only 200,000 barrels. The rapid increase of the cities at home would occasion a large demand. He urged the importance of growing only the best fruits, and to send to market only the best selected specimens.

LEANING TREES.—Orchards, especially of apples, are often disfigured by leaning trees. Oftentimes it is caused by the borer weakening a tree on one side so that it is easily blown over. Where the tree is large it is not easy to remedy it, but with smaller ones it is not so difficult. The earth may be loosened somewhat, the trees set upright, and carefully fastened by stakes or guys, and the earth replaced around the roots. It would be well to add some rich compost to promote the growth. If, as is very probable, the top of the tree has become one-sided, it should be pruned so as to restore the balance. In this way pear trees may be righted up even when six inches through the stem, but the best way is to look after the young trees and not permit them to depart from the way of uprightness. It is a popular error that there is nothing more needed to get a good apple orchard than the setting out of the trees.

SAWING OFF LARGE BRANCHES OF TREES.—It is a very great mistake to defer the sawing off of limbs of trees until they get of great size. The proper plan, as has been often explained, is to do light pruning annually. Big limbs cut off near the body of the tree leave a large scar that never heals over, and of course decay begins, and the rot eats in the very heart of the trees. This is a great wrong against nature which she never forgives. Yet how common it is all over the country to see orchards thus mutilated. Some who feel it a necessity to cut off large limbs, cut them at a distance of a foot or two from the tree at first, so that the process of closing over starts at the trunk before the rooting of the branch commences. Those who watch their trees while young, cutting a small branch here and there as needed, will have no large ones to saw off in after years. Look to your young trees now.

ORCHARDS FOR ROCKY LANDS.—There are many fields on many farms, oftentimes, too rocky to be profitably cultivated, or from which a profit is barely made. There is room for much more fruit, to be used in supplying the home and foreign trade; and on the rocky lands orchards could be profitably set out. There are some towns where the land is so full of large granite rocks that it can never be very valuable for cultivation, but which seems to be peculiarly well adapted to the growth of apple trees. The man who owns a farm consisting of such land, may work hard during his whole lifetime, trying to get a living by cultivating such land, and barely make out to pay his way, while, if he would devote his land to the use to which it seems adapted—that of orcharding—in a few years he would derive a handsome revenue from the sale of fruit.

Stall-Feeding Cattle.

In a long article in the New York Tribune Mr. Henry Stewart says that it is everywhere admitted by stockmen that the profit gained in rearing cattle for market is seldom less than 40 per cent. yearly, and figures are given to show that 75 per cent is often realized. This is the result of feeding cattle from birth to maturity. There is still greater profit in feeding a thin steer costing 5 cents a pound alive until it is worth 7 cents a pound, because there is not only a gain by the increase in weight, let us say of 200 or 500 pounds in three months feeding at 7 cents a pound, but also on the 2 cents a pound or the whole weight of 1,000 pounds more. This is, on the whole, equivalent to a much greater profit than could be gained from the sale of the crops that are fed. Many crops are costly, but costly crops cannot be produced under any other system than that of stall feeding. Pasturage is not required, and as one acre of roots, with straw and linseed and cottenseed meals, will feed five head of steers for 150 days, the economy of land is very great and root-growing is the key to the whole business. The bulky and least salable crops are changed into valuble concentrated products, and at the same time there is returned a large quantity of valuable manure. A calf represents really more value per pound than an animal two or three years old, because it contains the initial force, so to speak, which brought it into existence, and a pound of flesh can be put into a calf at less expense for food and care than upon an older animal. It should follow, then, that these calves are disposed of by their first owners at considerably less than their value, and could be fed and reared to maturity with profit. Stall-feeding is applicable to the home bred or purchased animal and filling the stalls with either, and feeding to them straw and corn-fodder which would be otherwise wasted, represents for each ton so many pounds of valuable flesh, or fat, or, at least, so much heat and life-sustaining elements as will realize the richer foods from the duty of merely sustaining life that, they may be devoted to the more productive effects of making flesh and fat. Winter feeding of stock gives employment to laborers who would otherwise have but little to do, and the preparation of cutting the stalls entail but a small cost on the account. The system is thus more economical than might be supposed.

The champion fish lie is out. It comes from the Coatesville, Chester county Union, which says that a black bass attempted to milk a cow while she was cooling herself in the Brandywine creek. The bass lacerated one of the cow's teats badly and held on until the cow ran bellowing back to shore, where it dropped off and walked back to the water. The cow is the property of a reliable old Quaker who never told a lie except in a horse trade.

A little boy said he would rather have the earache than the toothache, because he wasn't compelled to have his ear pulled.

The Secret of Good Butter.

Every one knows how superior is the reputation of Philadelphia butter, and many have the attempts been to account for it. Perhaps the most popular notion was that it was due to the prevalence of the "sweet vernal grass" in our pastures and hay fields—the grass which often gives so peculiar a fragrance to meadow hay. But it needed very little reasoning to demolish such a theory as this. This grass is one of the poorest for hay or pasture purposes and scarcely exists, except on cold, clay lands, in partially shady places, near groves or low woods. Yet while this grass is the exception, in low pastures, or in the hay fed to our cows, good butter is the general rule in all our markets.

It has long been the opinion of our best agricultural generalizers of facts that we owe much more of the sweetness of our butter to the abundance of springs and spring houses in our state, than to any thing peculiar which grows in our pastures. Milk has a particular affinity for any odors in the atmosphere, and water has some, hence whatever impurities may get into the atmosphere of the spring house is drawn out by running water and the very best security is provided against their being absorbed by the cream.

We notice this now through observing an inquiry whether the light of a kerosene lamp in a dairy could possibly affect the quality of the butter; we should answer most decidedly in the affirmative. All odors of every description should be carefully avoided if the very best brand is desired.

There is one little incident in this reputation of Philadelphia butter which must never be forgotten. The followers of Penn made up a large class of our original farming population. With these people cleanliness was especially one of the virtues. It was not a mere sentiment that it was "next to godliness," but an every day testimony in all they did. Aided in these cleanly practices by their numerous springs and spring houses, we have little doubt we owe to them as much as to any other circumstances the eminent character which Philadelphia butter enjoys; and we believe that if other quarters would give special attention to these little niceties, as good butter might be made in any part of the Union as here. Nevertheless, we are obliged to add that there is a good deal of poor butter sold in Philadelphia made in the eastern counties, arising we think from those having a small dairy churning only half as often as they should.—Germantown Telegraph.

A vigorous growth of hair is promoted and the youthful color restored by applying Parker's Hair Balsam.

Do You Know?—That a little water in butter will prevent it from burning when used for frying?

That a little saltpetre worked into butter that has become sour or rancid will render it sweet and palatable?

That pennyroyal distributed in places frequented by roaches will drive them away?

That wild mint will keep rats and mice out of the house?

That lime sprinkled in fire places during summer months is healthful?

That Spanish brown mixed with a little water, will make hearths look pretty? A pound costs ten cents and will last two or three months. Use but a little at a time.

That leaves of parsley, eaten with vinegar, will prevent the disagreeable consequences of tainted breath by onions?

That flowers and shrubs should be excluded from a bed chamber?

That oil paintings, hung over the mantle-piece are liable to wrinkle with the heat?

How often persons have been annoyed by burrs clinging to their dress or clothing, and how seldom have they, when cleaning them, given it a thought that Burdock Root is the most valuable blood cleanser and purifier known, and is sold by every druggist under the name of Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00.

To mark tools: Cover the part to be marked with a thin coating of tallow or beeswax. Then with a sharp instrument write the name in the tallow, cutting clearly into it. Then fill in the letters with nitric acid. Let it remain from one to ten minutes. Then dip in water and rub off, and you will have the mark etched.

If you are sick and troubled with dyspepsia, Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you.

An undertaker may know nothing of the science of pugilism, but he can lay a fellow out beautifully.

Hop Bitters.

Are the Purest and Best Bitters ever made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion,—the oldest, best and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use Hop Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "Invalid's Friend and hope," and no person or family should be without it. (4)
